Dhondup Wangchen and senior Tibetan monk Jigme Gyatso were arrested in Tibet in March 2008, after smuggling "Leaving Fear Behind" out of Tibet just before the Beijing Olympics. The film interviews ordinary Tibetans in Tibet about their views on life in Tibet. In 2009, Dhondup was sentenced to six years in prison for "subversion." He may have Hepatitis B, and his health is declining. Amnesty International, Human Rights Watch, Reporters Without Borders, among others, are advocating for his release.
